Dear Parents,

As the role of technology in education has become more prevalent with each passing year, the teachers and administrators at Liza Jackson Preparatory School have identified a need to educate students on internet safety. Over the last several years we have tried different programs, including presentations by the Children's Advocacy Center, law enforcement representatives, and other community experts. Last year we used a program developed by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, called NS Teens. We felt that it was not only age appropriate but also that students responded positively to the information provided.

On the next Early Release day, October 2nd, 2014, each grade level Science teacher will be presenting the NS Teens program to 7th and 8th grade students and the NS Tweens program to 5th and 6th grade students. If you would like to preview the Power Point presentation, you can access it at the following website: <http://www.netsmartz.org/Resources>

If you would prefer that your child not participate in this program, please sign and return the form below to your child's Science teacher by October 1st 2014. If we do not receive this completed form, your child will participate in the program.
